

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clearly an partisan effort to support the Bush Campaign. why is this "documentary" any different than Farenheit 9/11 - which would never be aired under the guise of "news"

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. If Sinclair is so committed to serving the public interest then why did they block the airing of the Nightline segment about casualties of war?

Thank you for your time and consideration.
